THEA To Host Gandy Business Engagement Meeting

Tampa, FL – The Tampa Hillsborough Expressway Authority (THEA) is hosting a Business Engagement meeting this Thursday, August 9th. Local Gandy businesses are invited to meet with the Selmon Extension team as part of THEA's commitment to ensure open communication with Gandy-area businesses during the construction of the Selmon Extension.

"From the start, THEA has been committed to communicating with and supporting Gandy businesses during the construction of the Selmon Extension. We have implemented the Shop Gandy! Business Support Initiative, aimed at promoting and driving commerce to the businesses along the Gandy corridor before, during and after the construction of the Selmon Extension," said Sue Chrzan, THEA Director of Public Affairs and Communications. "Our outreach teams are continually connecting with businesses to communicate timelines and address any concerns, and we have a dedicated Public Information Officer, Kymberly Graves, on site Monday through Friday to help with any issues. This Business Engagement meeting gives businesses another way to be involved and understand the construction project."

About the Tampa Hillsborough Expressway Authority (THEA)

As the owner and operator of the Selmon Expressway, the Tampa Hillsborough County Expressway Authority's (THEA) mission is to provide safe, reliable, and financially sustainable transportation services to the Tampa Bay region while reinvesting customer-based revenues back into the community.

Our vision is to lead, partner, and implement safe, economically sound, and innovative multi-modal transportation solutions for our Tampa Bay Community.

About the Selmon Extension

The Selmon Extension is a 1.9-mile toll lane located in the median of Gandy Boulevard, which gives travelers a choice: use Gandy Boulevard for local destinations or use the Selmon Extension for a direct connection to the Selmon Expressway or the Gandy Bridge.
